John Horton was born in Los Angeles in 1925. He was raised in Tyler, Texas. Horton worked in the fishing industry in Alaska and California, and attended Seattle University. He worked for a while as a carpenter, and played basketball at Baylor University. He worked at a local radio station in East Texas and at the Hometown Jamboree in California. He did some recording with little success and picked up the nickname the Singing Fisherman.

*Johnny married Billie Jean Jones, the widow of country music legend Hank Williams. He sang country songs and signed a recording contract with Columbia, where he would achieve his greatest success. He topped the country charts in 1959 with When It's Springtime In Alaska. On November 5, 1960, Horton was killed in an automobile accident in Milano, Texas following an appearance at the Skyliner in Austin. His biography was published in 1983 under the title *Your Singing Fisherman

"i mushed from point barrow through blizzard of snow.
 been out prospectin' for two years or so.
 pulled into fairbanks, the city was a-boom.
 so i took a little stroll to the red dog sea-loon.

as i walked in the door, the music was clear.
 the purtiest voice i had heard in two years.
 the song she was singin' made a man's blood run cold.
 when it's springtime in alaska, it's forty below.
 (when it's springtime in alaska it's forty below.)

it was redhead lil who was singin' so sweet.
 i reached down and took the snow packs off my feet.
 i reached for the gal who was singin' the tune.
 we did the eskeemo hop all around the sea-loon.

with a caribou crawl and a grizzly bear hug.
 we did our dance on a kodiak rug.
 the song she kept singin' made a man's blood run cold.
 when it's springtime in alaska it's forty below.

i was as innocent as i could be.
 i didn't know lil was big ed's wife-to-be.
 he took out his knife and he gave it a throw.
 when it's springtime in alaska i'll be six feet below.
 (when it's springtime in alaska he'll be six feet below.)
